Enterprise Integration Joins Amazon Web Services Partner Network

Jacksonville, Fla. – Enterprise Integration (EI), a leading managed services provider in IT automation, announced it has joined the Amazon Web Service (AWS) Partner Network (APN) as an APN Technology Partner. Much like EI's core business practices, the AWS is based on service innovation. However, instead of AWS building sales, marketing and management channels from the ground up, they partner with MSP's, like EI, to heighten their managed service offerings. Together, EI can continue to advise, build and deploy tailored solutions, while AWS concentrates on improving its efficiency and scalability.

Tracey Brown, CTO at Enterprise Integration said, "The end user truly benefits with this collaboration. They gain peace of mind knowing they have unlimited 24x7 access to industry experts, centralized resources focused on driving their business forward and a supported provider making continual service improvements. These benefits all equate to an enhanced customer experience." Mr. Brown further explained, "Our collaboration with AWS creates an opportunity for us to take our Cloud+ offering to next level, by providing our clients with the most advanced cloud infrastructure on the market."
